

RPS Energy - Genesis Partnership

Supporting Clients in a “Lower for Longer” Oil Price Environment

As leading consultants to the petroleum industry, RPS Energy and Genesis have developed an innovative partnership that addresses the changing needs of our clients as they emerge from a lengthy downturn.

We have joined forces in important areas to cover a wide range of advisory, technical and operating disciplines. In this way, we can provide high-quality, cost-effective support for technical and commercial teams in the efficient development of their assets and in making important business decisions.

Our global presence and internationally recognised capabilities in the sub-surface; subsea and facilities engineering; cost estimation and petroleum economics; and in project management give us the ability to help evaluate and progress onshore and offshore developments, wherever they are.

We have been working on this combined approach for some time and have now generated significant experience in responding to clients whether they are IOCs, NOCs and Governments or financial institutions. The partnership allows us to make sure that the right specialist skill set is available and to work a seamless manner on complex projects.

For more information please contact Carla Regan at Genesis (carla.regan@genesisoilandgas.com) or Mike Larsen (larsenm@rpsgroup.com) at RPS.

